HON. CARTER HARRISON was re-elected Mayor of Chicago.

GEN. GRANT has been elected president of the American Rifle Association.

The Ohio Legislature has indefinitely postponed the Compulsory Vaccination bill.

The Chicago bricklayers have ended their strike, the employers conceding the demand of $4.50 a day.

A BILL which makes gambling felony has passed the Lower House of the Tennessee Legislature and will likely pass the Senate.

PARIS is to take a vote on May 19th on the appropriation of $100,000 to aid the Paris, Frankfort and Georgetown Railroad.

THE Mayors of Kansas City, Cincinnati and Chicago are Kentuckians. Our people have a natural aptitude for governing cities.

THE independent movement in Chicago politics has collapsed, and most of its leaders have returned to the Republican ranks, where they belong.

MAINE is the only State likely to pass a prohibition amendment this year, most of the Western States having high license laws under consideration.

GOVERNOR BLACKBURN has gone to Arkansas on a short visit. Lieutenant-Governor Cantrill has charge of the executive office during his absence.

It will cost Georgia $50,000 for the Legislature to meet this spring and count the vote for Governor, which will be necessary on account of the death of Governor Stephens.

THE Wisconsin Senate has passed a memorial to Congress asking for the conditional repeal of the duty on lumber, provided the Canadian Parliament adopts similar reciprocal measures.

PRIVATE information has been received at Indianapolis that Judge W. G. Graham, of that city, has been offered by the President the office of Postmaster General and that he will probably accept.

A SUBSCRIPTION is being taken up in Richmond to defray the expenses of expected military organizations from North Carolina, South Carolina, Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia, who will contest in the competitive drill at the Virginia State Fair.

THE Commissioner of Agriculture of Kentucky says: "The full breadth of wheat was sown. Some damage was done by the fly; the present outlook is unfavorable, and the prospect of 20 per cent. below last year's crop, which was 10 per cent. the largest ever grown in the State."

THE Canadian Minister of Customs has decided not to grant any modifications of regulations which would encourage United States whisky to come into Canada in bond. He has taken a most positive stand in the matter and as a result of this the Dominion Government has refused to concede to American distillers the privileges they have been asking.

On the subject of small farms, the New York Herald says: Texas has shown many signs of an intention to lead the Southern States in enterprise; but the last report from there is by far the most promising—it is that a number of owners of large estates have determined to cut up plantations into small farms and sell them on easy terms to actual settlers. Small farms mean high farming and populous, intelligent, stable, well-to-do communities. Many small farms in New York and New Jersey yield greater profits than an equal number of over-large plantations at the South, for the simple reason that on each one the labor is done mostly by the owner, and done thoroughly. There are parts of the South where for climate and sanitary reasons it would be useless to ask white farmers to settle; but much of the agricultural portion of Texas, like the higher ground of the other Southern States, is as healthy as any part of the North and offers to farmers the superior inducements of shorter winters, greater variety of crops and frequently better soil than they can find at the North. The Texas experiment, if managed with ordinary ability and honesty, will benefit every one concerned and the remainder of the South will do well to keep an eye on it.

SPECIAL despatches received in Chicago from all parts of the winter wheat-growing section are discouraging, the severe and continuously cold weather, and in some places the fly, having caused injury to the crops. In Ohio the crop is estimated at not more than 70 per cent. of that of last year, and in Illinois 75 per cent. The reports from Iowa, Kansas and Missouri are more favorable. In California the estimate is 75 per cent. of an average crop.

About the Ashland Tragedy.

From the Frankfort Yeoman.

We have a letter from a gentleman at Charleston, W. Va., which says: "You can tell Gov. Blackburn that no importance is due to a letter written from here by an amateur 'detective' who sets up a theory concerning the Ashland tragedy. It can be none other than Alf. W. Bennett. He is a young man, ambitious for distinction as a detective, and he feels keenly the treatment he received at the hands of the authorities at Ashland, who refused to employ him to 'work up' the case. That was the animus. I question if there is any one to be found in this region who doubts the guilt of the prisoners now in custody."

Catching Sme's in Lake Champlain.

Winter fishing is now being enjoyed by those who are fond of the sport. The lake at Burlington has just closed in, and the smelt-shers have moved their little huts on runners out to the accustomed grounds. Modern improvements have made this sport one of the most luxurious imaginable. Instead of kneeling in the cold wind beside a constantly freezing hole in the ice, the sportsman now sits at ease in his neat little mobile house, warmed by a stove, and keeps watch of two or three lines let down through holes in the floor and corresponding holes in the ice. He smokes an cigarette, or talks with a companion, and is as comfortable as a millionaire in his grate of glowing sea-coal. Besides being a lazy amusement smelt fishing is a pretty profitable sport, as the fish are exceedingly toothsome, and bring a good price in the local markets. An attentive and persistent sportsman will make about as much out of his day's sport as a laborer who comes home sore and stiff at night with his hard-earned pittance. The geniuses who sit on his bench and man at the little lines is usually a oily, hospitable sort of a fellow, and is ever willing that the blue-faced skater should seek refuge occasionally in his cosy little house, and even permits him to handle one of the lines for a while. If he should chance to bring a young lady companion with him, the ancient fisherman becomes a model of gallantry. He lets his black pipe under the stove, resigns his warm seat to the fair one, and places all his piscatorial resources at her command. It is pleasant to note the immense satisfaction with which he resigns to her the line upon which he has just detected a timid nibble, and when, following his directions, she hooks the unhappy fish and draws it up through the ice with a little scream of mingled terror and delight, his eyes shine with approbation and pleasure, and he feels as proud as did the Canadian woodsman who initiated the Princess Louise into the mysteries of salmon-fishing. But when he removes the struggling victim and coolly bites out its eyes with his teeth or a fresh bait, the situation becomes embarrassing in the extreme, and the cosy hut no longer possesses any attraction for the young skaters. They beat a hasty retreat, leaving the hospitable proprietor in such a state of astonishment and perplexity that he sticks the fish's eye into his pipe and puts a slice of plug tobacco on the hook. There is such bewilderment in the memory of a pretty face.

An Alabama editor confesses that he "has serious apprehensions" that base-ball is about to be introduced into that State.—Boston Transcript.

Fatal Affray Between Brothers-in-Law.

COLUMBUS, Ga., April 4.—John Cox and Wm. Thomas, both white men, were brothers-in-law. Last night they met at the home of Duncan Cox, the father-in-law of William Thomas, and a family quarrel arose, in which John Cox shot and instantly killed William Thomas. Cox emptied both barrels of a shotgun at Thomas and lodged fifty-two duckshot in his body.

Smallpox at Vincennes, Ind.

VINCENNES, Ind., April 4.—The smallpox scare has been revived here by the announcement that Fred Case, a young man in the employ of the Ohio and Mississippi express at North Vernon, and who came home sick on Sunday, was down with the disease. His case is a very bad one, and it is feared that a wedding dress, which was carried from the Case residence an hour or two before the physician was called in, will spread the disease. The greatest excitement prevails.

"Pocket Burroughs" in the British Parliament.

"Pocket burroughs" derive their quaint appellation from the fact that the individual commanding their votes carries them as it were, in his pocket. Not all the pocket burroughs, however, are under patrician control; the purse of Plutus holding influence over a goodly number of them. It is a well-known fact that there are scores of them purchasable as any other commodity of the market can be bought up, lock, stock and barrel, and are so bought. The late commission of inquiry into contested elections gave ample evidence of this, having brought to light the astounding revelation that the voters of several such burroughs—not small ones either—were bribed, almost to a man! Many of them even boasted of the large sums they had received, after stipulating for, and chaffering over them, without thought of shame or qualm of conscience.

One would naturally expect that a candidate for Parliamentary honors would be required to give some proof of his fitness for Parliamentary duties. But in burroughs like these no such qualification is needed. With them, political capacity and knowledge of statesmanship—or, indeed, other knowledge of any useful kind—are the least and last things thought of. Money will make them take the wall; and well the man or money knows it—feels as certain of entering Parliament, if he only pays the price, as he would of an opera box by purchasing a ticket. It is simply a question of how much he is disposed to pay; and that he arranges with the electioneering agent, who in turn makes it square with the electors. There are always constituencies open to representatives of this kind, and who care for no other, and would not have any other. Nor does the candidate need to be resident among them or even have previous acquaintance with them. He may be a total stranger of unknown antecedents, brought from some distant part of the country—London or elsewhere—his first introduction to his constituency that is to be, given him by the local lawyer who acts as his electioneering agent, often only a few days before the election. But the lawyer himself has been previously made acquainted with his legislative capabilities by having heard the jingle of his gold. This communicated to the covetous constituency has a marvelous, almost magical, effect, and presto! the unknown Pluto, who may be the veriest adventurer, becomes one of the Senatorial grandees of the great British Empire, on which the sun never sets!

MR. PATRICK BREEN is the champion fence builder of East Maysville. He has lately done some very neat work there.

The man who has to move and can't get a house is in a quandary, and there are several such persons in town this week.

A FALL of a substance resembling sulpphur is reported to have taken place on three successive nights in the vicinity of Princeton, Ky.

REV. A. N. GILBERT will preach at the Christian Church to-night on the International S. S. Lesson for next Sunday, and will administer the ordinance of immersion at the close of the discourse.

THE readers of the BULLETIN are invited to give careful attention to the new advertisements printed elsewhere. It is a regular bargain directory as they will find when they go to the establishments named.

CHARLES DINGER, who is charged with assaulting a boy and using insulting language to a woman, was apprehended at the river landing yesterday by Deputy Marshal Wm. Dawson and night policeman Charles Dawson.

MR. WM. BROWN, who has charge of W. B. Mathews & Co.'s tobacco hogshead manufactory, one day this week turned out sixty-three complete hogsheads. With

A BROTHER of the late Hon. E. Rumsey Wing, of Kentucky, is under arrest at St. Louis, for killing a young man named Joseph Glenn, who formerly lived at Owensboro, in this State. The killing was the result of a quarrel about an abandoned woman.

MR. R. FICKLIN, agent for the Chesapeake and Ohio, Railroad Company in this city, by an arrangement, made recently with the Brazil Mail Steamship Company, is able to give through freight rates to any point in South America.
A schedule we have examined shows the rates to be very low.

THE trotting track of the Bourbon Agricultural Association will be completed in about two weeks and work will then begin on the grand stand and other improvements. The grand stand is to have a seating capacity of 7,000 persons, and will be similar to that at Lexington or the one at Louisville.

THE manufacturers of cigars in Maysville have been notified by order of the Cigar Makers' Union, that a strike will begin on the first of May for an additional one dollar a thousand on all grades of cigars. The tax reduction of $3 a thousand and on cigars goes into effect on that day, and the operatives think that a part of the reduction ought to be added to their earnings. The outlook is that the strike will be general over the country.

SOL SMITH RUSSELL, one of the popular comedians of the day, will appear at the Opera House on the 9th inst., as Tom Dillaway in "Edgewood Folks." The play has been rewritten and generally reconstructed. A good deal of irrelevant matter has been hewn out of it, and more bright comedy has been written in.
The reconstruction effects better situations for Mr. Russell, brings him oftener on the scene, and introduces more naturally than before Sol Smith Russell's character sketches, impersonations and songs, in which he stands unrivaled on the temporary stage.

The Street Railway.

The subscription papers for the $20,000 first mortgage bonds are now ready and it is to be hoped the citizens and property holders of Maysville who are to be benefited by this public improvement, will take the bonds without delay.

The present opportunity is the best the people will ever have to secure a street railway and if the chance is lost, it is doubtful if the road will ever be built. The matter cannot be delayed any longer and the people must make up their minds to subscribe within the next ten days, so that work can be begun in time to have the road in operation by next June. It should be remembered that unless $20,000 is subscribed there will be no street railway. The construction of the road will greatly advance in value all property in Maysville and in Chester, and everybody who can do so, ought, therefore, to subscribe as there is no risk of loss in taking these bonds. On the contrary they are certain to be a good investment. So let everybody come forward and at once take all the bonds they can, and thus secure the early completion of the railway.

PERSONALS.

Points About People Here and Elsewhere.

Mrs. George C. Easton has recovered sufficiently to be able to go about the house.

Miss Lizzie Dye, who lived near Mayslick, died on the 4th inst. The funeral will take place to-day.

The venerable Dr. William R. Wood was on the street to-day. He bears his years remarkably well.

The following notice of Mr. Lewis Gollins, who is a native of this city, is taken from the Courier-Journal:

Mr. Collins, who is the son of Richard H.
Collins, LL. D., the historian of Kentucky, came to Louisville a young practitioner and has won friends and business by his energy, industry and capacity as a lawyer. He was handsomely complimented by the recent unanimous election by the city council for the third time to represent the city in the directory of the Louisville Gas Company. He also holds a position of honor in the Kentucky Sunday School Union—a member of the Executive Committee.

Barn Burned.

A barn belonging to Mrs. Mary Robinson, three and a half miles south of Mayslick, was destroyed by fire last night.
Seven horses, three cows, two buggies, a reaper, a large crop of tobacco and various farming implements were burned, the loss amounting to several thousand dollars. The cause of the fire is not known.

ABERDEEN ITEMS.

Miss Mary H. Cushman, an exceedingly winsome young lady, has returned from her fling trip, where she had been visiting, Hon.
David Gibson, of Clifton.

Some wives, when they think their leige lords, remain out after lodge hours, have their petty revenge, by putting the gas out and leave the ashbox on the hall stairs. This helps them to bless their angel wives, before saying their prayers.

"Come to me in dreams love" a languishing young lady sang with such dreamy effect, that her sweetheart jumped up, and exclaimed—but come to me in person, love, is the most agreeable way.

Miss Creighbaum and her attractive friend Miss Mockbee, created quite a confusion among masculine hearts.

Report says, a certain blonde gentleman has at last captivated by his persuasive power a dashing belle of Germantown.

Mrs. G. Wheeler has moved to Aberdeen, and has one of the most attractive residences on Second street.

Mr. Palmer has opened his grocery in such a flourishing manner that it is equaled by none. Mr. Palmer's gentlemanly and courteous manners have made him a general favorite.

Miss Effie Mann, a handsome young lady of Lexington, Ky., is visiting relatives at this place.

Monday being election day our streets were thronged creating commotion that it bewildered the natives. One old gentleman who had such a difficult time in crossing the street remarked, "It beats Broadway N. Y."

Report says, the Misses Wheelers are recently welcomed back to Aberdeen, as their musical capabilities are a pleasing acquisition to the town.

Why such needless curiosity among so many, concerning the young lady, who keeps a handsome Maysville gentleman posted as to news.

We were informed by a strawberry blonde, that Pittsburg ladies take the palm for beauty.
We have heard of one near by, who has received sufficient homage to convince us of the fact.

night's show.

E. M. GROVES.

IN MEMORIAM.

A life "well rounded to its close," a life filled to its lonely end with noble actions, generous deeds, unobtrusive proofs of unselfish thought for others' need, a life crowned at last with full fruition of many a hope unfulfilled here. This is the record of James Smith Armstrong, who died suddenly on the 10th of March, in Paris, France. This brilliant, witty, polished, intelligent, courteous "gentleman of the old school," was born in this city on the 23rd of October, 1801. His father was John Armstrong, one of the most prominent men in the business and social circles of his day.
He was one of the most public spirited men Maysville has ever known, generous and liberal to his town and to his church. Almost unaided he built the M. E. Church, on 3rd street, and presented to the town one of its public schools. He and his brother, Johnson Armstrong, contributed largely to the early success of Maysville. His death was universally regretted. Of his numerous family, only four members now survive, Mrs. R. H. Lee, of Baltimore, Mrs. R. G. Dobyns, Mrs. T. H.
Mannen, of this city, and Mr. F. W. Armstrong, of Hillsboro, O.

James S. Armstrong was, in early life, associated with the late Jas. H. Wittit, of Louisville Ky., in the ownership and management of the Kanawha Salt Works. In 1822 he removed to Cincinnati. He was the second President of the Commercial Bank, of that city, succeeding Robert Buchanan, Esq., who counted himself one of many warm friends. Among them were Reuben Springer, Esq., Wm.
Hooper, Esq., Judge Hoadly, Judge Burnett, and others in Cincinnati. In our city A. M.
January, Esq., Christian Shultz, Esq., S. B.
Nicholson, Esq., deceased, Dr. John Shaeffer, and many other kindred and loved him in his youth. Some of them have passed the stern majority, some are still awaiting their summons to join the "immense host of those whom men call dead." In 1813 Mr.
Armstrong resigned his position in the Commercial Bank, desiring to make his future home in Paris, France. He has made frequent visits to America and has been a great traveler.
He was one of the most sagacious, far-seeing bankers that Cincinnati has known, and, as his record proves, a most successful man of business. His large estate is the result of his untiring industry and energy. Not many Americans from this section of the United States, but can testify to his sincere and unflinching hospitality. To his kindred, to his friends of dear "Lang Syne" he was boundlessly cordial. Although he lived so long in a distant land, his love for, and pride in his own worthiness, his attachment to this, the place of his birth, remained with him until the transition which we call death, opened his eyes with clearer vision to the loveliness of that "fair country where our hearts abide."

His charities, both public and private, were almost unlimited, and it may truly be said that his right hand was ignorant of the generous deeds of his left. His habits were simple, his life blameless, unostentatious, his integrity unimpeachable. He leaves an extensive family circle to mourn with keen regret the irreparable loss of this kindest and most generous friend, brother and uncle. Although they feel sure that he has received the reward of his noble life in the enjoyment of "peace that passeth understanding" of the "glorious light that faileth never," they long with unspeakable desire to know him once more in the flesh. The memories of so many so well deserved should have been issued some time since, but particulars of it have only just been received.

This is a very unworthy tribute to the memory of such a man, but one of deep, reverent love is and will be preserved in the hearts of his kindred and friends, long after his form has returned to dust in the beautiful cemetery of Montmore, his last long home.

Asleep in Jesus' far from thee; They kindred and their graves may be;
But there is still a blessed sleep.
From which none ever wakes to weep.

Dorsey Relates Garfield's Promise to Bounce James and MacVeagh.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Star-route surprises will never end. The prosecution concluded the cross-examination of Dorsey last night, whereas everybody was giving them all the week. At one or two places the testimony grew interesting, though for the most part it was of a dry, routine character, consisting of minute details, the force of which is only perceptible to the attorneys, and often enough not to them save with a large microscope.

For instance, the audience was all attention when Dorsey told how Miss Springman was appointed to a clerkship in one of the departments in 1881, on his recommendation, and how he went to his ranch in Mexico before the appointment was made out, and Rerdell got it and took it to her, and afterward how this creature wrote vile letters to her, which letters were in the possession of the witness. The Government didn't call for them. The interview with Rerdell at the Albemarle Hotel, New York, was then taken up, and led to Dorsey's visit here, and the affidavit Rerdell made, denying what he had told James and MacVeagh. The affidavit was very hard on James and MacVeagh. Dorsey went on to say that if he had written it, "there would have been some English in it." Merrick asked him what he meant. Dorsey replied in the vigorous manner he employs when thoroughly in earnest, that James and MacVeagh were two dirty scoundrels who disgraced the offices they held and the administration that put them in office. He added that if Garfield had been shot a week later both of these persons would have been kicked out of their offices in contempt and disgrace, and this he (Garfield) had promised Dorsey to do, in the presence of Ingersoll. During the delivery of the reminiscences of the past that is so far back and yet so near, the silence in the court-room was almost painful. None of the counsel bethought him to object, and the Court was equally wrapped up in the matter. Colonel Bliss forgot his usual sneering smile, and sat with a face paler than usual and a set mouth, looking intently into the face of the man on whom he had so abjectly fawned in his day of power, and, oblivious to time, or place, or change of circumstances, the vulgar Mephistophiles of the New York bar, and politics dropped his mask and nodded acquiescence as the cold truth fell in frozen facts from Dorsey's lips in earnest tone and measured voice. Colonel Bliss corroborated the ex-Senator by thus punctuating his story by confirmatory nods. Dorsey quit talking. Bliss looked quickly around as if startled, and resumed his sneering mask. Merrick hastily took up the dropped thread of his examination, and things went on as usual again. It is supposed that John W. Dorsey will go on to-morrow.

RERDELL DENOUNCED.

Judge Wilshire, His Late Counsel Pronounces Him an Unmitigate Scoundrel.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Judge Wilshire, late counsel for Rerdell, in an interview to-day, denounced Rerdell in unmeasurable terms. Among other things unmentionable of his late client he said: "He is one of the most treacherous men I ever met. He fooled me. I had heard that he was fooling me. Dorsey was no fool in him, for he told me that Rerdell was fooling me, but I could not believe it. I told him finally what I had heard, and I thought I had a right, as his attorney to know if it was so. He swore by all that was good and bad that it was not true; that he had never met one of the Government Counsel, or anybody connected with the Government in consultation. At one time it was published in the Star that he was going to turn on the defendants. I called his attention to the publication, and he denied it most emphatically. I then suggested to him the propriety of a denial through the same channel. He agreed to it, and I, in order to have it right, wrote the cards denying the story. No one was more surprised than I was when Rerdell did as he did. He is the most infamous scoundrel I ever had anything to do with."

The Jeannette Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—James H. Bartlett, a fireman on the ill-fated and renowned Arctic cruiser Jeannette, and the last of the four late arrivals from Siberia, was examined by the Jeannette Board to-day, but nothing new was disclosed. This practically closes the inquiry. Dr. B. F. Collins, of Minneapolis, who lost a brother on the Jeannette had wired the Judge Advocate that he has mailed a series of questions he wishes propounded Bartlett before the inquiry is given the coup de grace, relative to the treatment of the deceased Collins by Captain De Long, also perished, but Judge Advocate Wainwright says the investigation is at an end so far as any developments are concerned, and intimates that the report to be rendered will exonerate everybody upon whom the slightest suspicion rests.

AMATEUR PRIZE FIGHT.

The Slugging Didn't Amount to Much, but One of the Boys Fell Down and Broke His Neck.

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 4.—A fatal prize fight occurred at Dubois, a small town in the heart of the lumber regions in Jefferson county, about ninety miles from Pittsburgh. It seems Mike McLaughlin and Martin Linksy, both boys, not more than eighteen years old, quarreled and agreed to settle the dispute according to prize-ring rules. The fight came off after working hours last evening, and was witnessed by a large party of pugilistic admirers. The first round or two were of but little interest, the antagonists being pretty evenly matched. The third round is said to have been a spirited one, and heavy odds were in favor of Linksy, but McLaughlin seemed to be better scinned. The fourth round brought the claret from both, but with no disadvantage to either. In the fifth round both came to the scratch with no little vim, and the punishment was about evenly divided. In the sixth round both felt somewhat worse of the wear, and slowed like porpoises. Considerable sparring was indulged in, when Linksy accidentally fell, his chin striking a root. His neck was broken, and he expired almost instantly. McLaughlin surrendered himself to the authorities.

PETER COOPER DEAD.

Short Sketch of the Eventful Career of the Well Known Philanthropist.

* NEW YORK, April 4.—Peter Cooper died at half-past three o'clock this morning of pneumonia. In his last moments Mr. Cooper was attended by Dr. J. J. Hull, the family physician, and Dr. Rufus P. Lincoln. About ten days ago he contracted a severe cold, with tendency toward pneumonia. He grew better, however, and last Saturday went out for a walk and came back exhausted and took to his bed, which he never left.

Ex-Mayor Edward Cooper and Mrs. Abraham S. Hewitt were with him when he breathed his last. Mr. Cooper's wife, who was Miss Sarah Bedell of Hempstead, L. I., and whom he married in 1813, died in 1869.

Peter Cooper was born in New York in 1791, his parents being in humble circumstances. He was obliged to pick up an education as best he could. At seventeen he was an apprentice at coach making. His first start towards a fortune was by the invention of an improvement in machines for shearing cloth during the war of 1812-15. He then went into the manufacture of cabinet ware, afterwards into the grocery business, and finally in the manufacture of glue and isinglass, in which business he remained for over half a century, accumulating a handsome fortune. In 1830 he built works for the manufacture of iron, and afterward a rolling and wire mill in New York. In 1845 he had a rolling mill for making railroad bars at Trenton, N. J. At Baltimore, in 1850, he designated and built the first locomotive engine constructed in America, operating it on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. For eighteen years he was President of the New York, Newfoundland and London Telegraph Company. He also experimented successfully in a project for the best propelling power for boats on the Erie Canal, using the endless chain. Always interested in his native city, he was chosen to the Board of Aldermen and of Aldermen. He was also prominent in the establishment of the old Public School Society. He accomplished the great object of his life, the establishment of an institution, the Cooper Union, for free education. In 1854 he laid the corner-stone of a large building on Third and Fourth avenues in New York, devoted to art and science. This institution now counts over 2,000 pupils per year. It has a school of art for women, a free school of telegraphy for young women, lecture rooms, reading rooms, and a library of over 10,000 volumes. The annual expense of this institution is about $60,000. In 1879 Mr. Cooper added another story to this building.

Mr. Cooper was a candidate for President of the United States, on the Greenback Labor ticket in 1876.
